Description :

PDF-3775d | Although we are used to thinking of science and the humanities as separate disciplines, in the nineteenth century this division was not recognized. As the scientist John Tyndall pointed out, not only were science and literature both striving to better "man's estate", they shared a common language and cultural heritage. The quest for "origins", the nature of the relationship between society and the... Literature and Science in the Nineteenth Century: An Anthology (Oxford World's Classics)
